Boundary Commission for Wales

Policy for Complaints

The Boundary Commission for Wales is committed to dealing effectively with any complaints you may have about our service. We aim to clarify any issues about which you are not sure. If possible, we will put right any mistakes we may have made. We will provide any service you are entitled to and which we have failed to deliver. If we get something wrong, we will apologise and, where possible, try to put things right. We also aim to learn from our mistakes and use the information we gain to improve our services.

When to use this policy?

You may use the complaint form at Appendix A to this document, email, phone or write should you wish to complain. This guide explains how to make a complaint.

You may use this policy if you are dissatisfied with a service we have provided, if you believe we have acted unfairly, refused to answer reasonable questions, failed to inform you of your rights to entitlement or we knowingly gave false or misleading information. You may also use it if we fail to tell you of your right to appeal a decision you believe to be unfair or fail to offer you a suitable solution if there is one available. This includes a service where we have delegated the delivery of that service to another party. In these cases however, we would expect you to approach them first for a resolution to your concern.

This policy does not apply if the matter relates to a Freedom of Information request or breach of the Data Protection Act. In this circumstance, you should contact:

Head of Business
Boundary Commission for Wales
Hastings House
Cardiff
CF24 0BL
Tel: 029 20464819

e-mail: corporate@boundaries.wales

If your complaint concerns the misuse or unlawful use of public money by the Commission you can also raise it with the Cabinet Office. You can contact the Cabinet Office by:

writing to: Cabinet Office
70 Whitehall
London
SW1A 2AS

e-mail: publiccorrespondence@cabinetoffice.gov.uk

How to make a complaint

You can make a complaint in writing, by e-mail or by using a complaint form. Receiving a complaint in writing is particularly important if the complaint is complicated and detailed. However, we may accept a verbal complaint if we consider it reasonable to do so.

You can express your complaint in any of the ways below.

- You can use the customer complaints form Appendix A which is at the end of this document.
- You can ask for a copy of our complaint form from the person with whom you are already in contact or tell them that you want your complaint dealt with formally.
- You can write a letter to us at the following address:

Secretary
Boundary Commission for Wales
Hastings House
Fitzalan Court
Cardiff
CF24 0BL

- You can telephone us on 029 20464819
(Rydym yn croesawu galwadau ffôn yn Gymraeg)
- You can e-mail us at enquiries@gov.wales

Complaints in the Welsh language will always be accepted.

How will we try to resolve issues?

Stage 1: Informal resolution

If possible, we believe it's best to deal with things straight away rather than try to sort them out later. If you have a complaint contact us by one of the methods listed below. Alternatively, if you are already dealing with the Commission, raise it with the person you are dealing with. They will try to resolve it for you there and then. Complaints that are considered under Stage 1 are usually considered and resolved quickly and if possible, within 10 working days of the complaint being raised.

If the person you are dealing with is unable to help, they will explain why and you can ask for a formal investigation.

Stage 2: Formal complaint

- We will formally acknowledge your complaint within 5 working days and let you know how we intend to deal with it. If your complaint was made in Welsh, this will not lead to a delay.
- We will ask you to tell us how you would like us to communicate with you and establish whether you have any particular requirements.
- We will deal with your complaint in an open and honest way.
- We will make sure that your communication with us in the future will not be affected because you have expressed a concern or made a complaint.

Once we have determined who will consider your complaint, our aim will be for that person to see your complaint through to the end result.

Normally, we will only be able to look at your complaints if you tell us about them within 6 months. This is because it is better to look into your complaints while the issues are still fresh in everyone's mind.

We may, exceptionally, be able to look at complaints which are brought to our attention later than this. However, you will have to give us strong reasons why you have not been able to bring it to our attention earlier and we will need to have sufficient information about the issue to allow us to consider it properly. (In any event, regardless of the circumstances, we will not consider any complaints about matters that took place more than three years before you raised the issue).

If you are expressing a complaint on behalf of somebody else, we will need their permission for you to act on their behalf.

What if there is more than one body involved?

If your complaint covers more than one body (for example, a government department) we will usually work with them to decide who should take a lead in dealing with your complaint. You will then be given the name of the person responsible for communicating with you while we consider your complaint.

If the complaint is about a body working on our behalf, for example, external contractors, you may wish to raise the matter informally with them first. However, if you want to express your complaint formally, we will look into this ourselves and respond to you.

Investigation

We will tell you who we have asked to look into your complaint. If your complaint is straightforward, we will usually ask somebody to look into it and get back to you. If it is more serious, we may use an external investigator.

We will set out to you our understanding of your complaint and ask you to confirm that we have understood the facts correctly. We will also ask you to tell us what outcome you are hoping for.

The person looking at your complaint will usually need to see the files we hold relevant to your complaint, and we will on occasion, need your consent to view all related information.

If there is a simple solution to your problem, we may ask if you are happy to accept this rather than investigate and produce a report.

We will aim to resolve complaints as quickly as possible and expect to deal with the vast majority within 10 working days of receipt of a complaint at the informal stage and within 20 working days at the formal stage. If your complaint is more complex, we will:

- let you know within this time why we think it may take longer to investigate;
- tell you how long we expect it to take;
- let you know where we have reached with the investigation; and
- give you regular updates, including telling you whether any developments might change our original estimate.

The person who is investigating your complaint will first aim to establish the facts. The extent of this investigation will depend on how complex and how serious the issues you have raised are.

In some instances, we may ask to meet with you to discuss your complaint. Occasionally, we might suggest mediation or another method to try to resolve disputes.

We will look at the relevant evidence. This could include files, notes of conversations, letters, e-mails or whatever may be relevant to your particular complaint. If necessary, we will talk to the staff or others involved and look at our policies and consider legal advice and guidance.

Outcome

If we formally investigate your complaint, we will let you know the outcome through your preferred form of communication. If necessary, we will produce a report and will explain how and why we came to our conclusions.

If we find that we got it wrong, we will tell you what and why it happened and explain how the mistake affected you.

If we find there is a fault in our systems or the way we do things, we will tell you what it is and how we plan to make changes to help prevent the same errors from happening again. If we got it wrong, we will always apologise.

Further Steps

If you consider we have not succeeded in resolving your complaint we will refer your complaint to be investigated independently by the Cabinet Office.

You are also entitled to complain to the Parliamentary Commissioner for Administration, often known as the Parliamentary Ombudsman. The Parliamentary Ombudsman can only consider complaints that are referred by a Member of Parliament, so you will need to contact your MP. You should also bear in mind that the Ombudsman will normally expect you to have gone through all stages of our complaints procedure first.

Learning lessons

We take your complaints seriously and try to learn from mistakes we have made. Where there is a need for change, we will develop an action plan setting out what we will do, who will do it and when we plan to do it by. We will let you know when changes we have promised have been made.

What if you need help in making your complaint

If you need extra assistance, we will try to put you in touch with someone who can help. You may wish to contact a Citizens Advice Bureau in your area; alternatively you may ask specialist agencies such as Race Equality Councils, Age Concern, Law Centre or another advice agency to assist.

What we expect from you

In times of trouble or distress, some people may act out of character. There may have been upsetting or distressing circumstances leading up to a complaint. We do not view behaviour as unacceptable just because someone is forceful or determined.

We believe that all complainants have the right to be heard, understood and respected. However, we also consider that our staff have the same rights. We, therefore, expect you to be polite and courteous in your dealings with us. We will not tolerate aggressive or abusive behaviour, unreasonable demands or unreasonable persistence.

When NOT to use this Policy

We cannot consider:

- complaints about other government departments, principal authorities, elected officials or a service delivered by a principal authority.
- an appeal against a 'properly made' decision by the Boundary Commission for Wales;
- a service that has its own complaints process in place.
